Floods, Winds Lash 5 States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The worst Minnesota flood in history drove 5,000 more residents of the Mankato area from their homes today.

The mass flight today occurred as the Minnesota river raged 10 feet above flood stage, and officials feared it might burst through sandbag dikes.

Rivers swollen by rapid snowmelt in fair and mild weather churned through streets, homes and fields in other sections of Minnesota and Iowa.

The Red Cross estimated more than 9,000 persons have been forced from their homes by flooding in Minnesota — 7,500 in the Mankato area. Flood refugees in Iowa were estimated at 2,000.

More than 100 families have been removed from island homes as the Mississippi River rose menacingly at La Crosse, Wis.

The U.S. weather bureau predicted one of the worst flood seasons in many years.

Towns in Indiana, Nebraska and Ohio were recovering from the last of tornadoes or strong winds.

A 12-year-old boy standing near a tree was killed by lightning during a hailstorm at Midletown in southwestern Ohio.

Windstorms caused property damage in Lucasville, Waverly and Baltimore, all in Ohio; and at Knightstown, Ind. A man and his wife were injured when their house trailer was overturned at Baltimore.

A portion of the Flandreau Dam on the Cottonwood River near New Ulm, in southern Minnesota burst Thursday night, permitting a heavier flow of water downstream toward Mankato.

The Red Cross estimated that about 2,000 more persons would be evacuated within the next two days in the Mankato area, which is expected to get six inches more of water because of the broken dam.

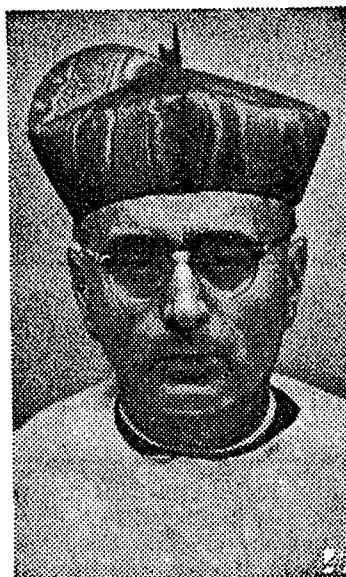

The Minnesota River was expected to crest at 30 feet Saturday at Mankato, breaking the record 29.9-foot crest in 1881. The river was at 27.6 feet Thursday night.

Residents of Chaska were constructing a 31-foot dike after the Weather Bureau forecast a 32-foot crest next week. Utility (Continued On Page Seven)

Cardinal Meyer Dies At 62 Years

CHICAGO (AP) — Albert Cardinal Meyer, 62, Roman Catholic archbishop of Chicago, died today. He had undergone cancer surgery Feb. 25.

The prelate, head of the largest Catholic community in the United States, began sinking last week after showing some signs of improvement from the operation in which a malignant tumor the size of a large walnut was removed from his brain.

CARDINAL MEYER

Earlier he had been taken off intravenous feeding and fed by tube. For a day or two he was able to take soft nourishment normally.

But drowsiness that physicians described as semi-coma forced them to resume tube feeding and then intravenous.

Early today the cardinal was reported in a heavy sleep and unresponsive to stimuli.

Since the four-hour surgery by a 10-member team in Mercy Hospital, Cardinal Meyer had shown only minimal responses to efforts to communicate with him.

His death removes from the hierarchy of his church one of the leading liberal members of the Council of Bishops.

He was singularly responsible for crystallizing the issue of religious freedom in 1964 during a meeting of the Ecumenical Council in Rome at which the Catholic Church attitude on other religions was reviewed.

He challenged a decision by the presidents to postpone a vote, and the American bishops present joined him, followed by scores of others. The vote was postponed by a technical ruling, but the liberals had made their views clear.

Cardinal Meyer, then an archbishop, became the spiritual leader of nearly two million Catholics in the Chicago area on Nov. 16, 1958.

Dirksen has worked closely with Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach and other administration leaders in shaping the bill to enforce the 15th Amendment's ban on denial of voting rights because of race or color.

"I hope they will have second thoughts overnight," Dirksen said of the six Democrats and three Republicans who put the amendments over late Thursday.

Today is the deadline set by the Senate for the committee to complete its work. And a House Judiciary subcommittee also is trying to finish its consideration of the bill.

Dirksen said the amendments, including one to outlaw poll taxes as a requirement for voting in state and local elections, "absolutely jeopardize this bill in my judgment."

COMMITTEE OKs VOTING BILL

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — A voting bill described by the chairman as "strong dosage" was approved today by a House Judiciary subcommittee by a heavy bipartisan margin.

Bogalusa March Ends In Uproar

By BILL CRIDER
BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — A Negro march on City Hall in this racially tense lumber mill town ended abruptly today in confusion and near hysteria at a downtown intersection about eight blocks after it began.

Whites clustered at the intersection said one of the official cars conveying the line of some 500 Negroes ran over a white man.

The uproar split the parade of Negroes, marching four abreast, about a third of the way down the line and stalled the march.

Asst. Police Chief L. C. Terrell tried to get things moving again. When he failed, he ordered the march turned back.

It wasn't clear exactly what happened.

Terrell shouted that the car did not touch the man. This was angrily disputed by many whites in the crowd.

The man sprawled on the pavement until an ambulance took him away.

The marchers, mostly teenagers who skipped school, had started out for the City Hall to back demands for changes in the old pattern of racial segregation.

Editorial Comment

Restudy Of Hospitals

President Johnson's call for further study of the proposal to close 11 Veterans' Hospitals and four soldiers' homes is evidence that political arm twisting is not solely a presidential accomplishment. In this case, he has responded to pressures moving opposite to the customary direction—that is, from Capitol Hill to the White House.

This is no cause for snide gratification at the expense of a chief executive known for his ability to persuade Congress. It simply means that the traditional balance of powers is not moribund—that Congress, when aroused by an issue, is able to force reconsideration of executive orders. This is a healthy state of affairs.

There are other reasons to be pleased at the President's decision to have the matter studied by an eight-man panel headed by E. Barrett Prettyman. This group should be able to sort out fact from emotion in the welter of comment made, both in Congress and out, since the closings of the veterans' facilities were ordered.

That is the important thing—to "resolve all doubts," as Senate Majority Leader Mansfield put it, "and be guided by the facts." The prevalence of doubts as to the wisdom of the closings was indicated by the weight of the opposition, which included not only Mansfield but many other members of Congress. Now the problem is to line up the facts and act accordingly.

Freedom Of Information

It is welcome news that President Johnson has promised his full cooperation in making "all information possible" available to Congress. It is good to have his assurance that he will follow the Kennedy policy of not permitting anyone in the administration except himself to use the executive privilege in denying congressional requests for information.

These assurances do not, however, rule out the need for the so-called "freedom of information" bill sponsored by Rep. John E. Moss of California, chairman of the House Government Information subcommittee. The investigations by the Moss subcommittee have made it clear that there are far too many barriers between the public and knowledge of the public business.

The administration is opposed to the Moss bill on the grounds that it would violate the constitutional doctrine of the separation of powers. It is important that this separation be maintained. But in our judgment it is even more important that the public have full access to all government records with but a few exceptions.

The Moss bill would exempt records in eight categories, including national security, personnel files of government employees, and commercial trade secrets. Under proper supervision and control, such exemptions are justified. Such control, however, is quite different from a system in which the President himself would decide what came under the heading of "all information possible."

A wire service executive testifying in favor of the "freedom of information" bill urged a preamble stating that "it is the intent of Congress that the maximum of public business be conducted in public." That would be an excellent rule to follow.

Dear Ann:

Discuss Arrangements Prematurely

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will not consider this letter too morbid or indelicate for your column.

Is it true when a person dies his hearing is the last of his senses to go? And is it true that even though a person is in a deep coma, unable to move or talk, he can still hear everything that is being said?

Recently a relative passed away. It made me very uncomfortable to be at the bedside while the funeral arrangements were being made, along with the conversation relating to his finances and speculation about his will. It must be horrible for a dying person to hear such matters discussed by well-meaning folks who mistakenly believe he is too far gone to know anything. Will you print this please? — RESPECT WANTED FOR ALL

Dear All: It is not what a person hears, but what he comprehends that counts.

A patient may respond to light and touch and sound but these responses are automatic and do not indicate that the brain is translating anything.

If the doctor says the patient is in a coma, it is safe to assume there is no comprehension. Since patients "do" slip in and out of a comatose state, however, it is best not to discuss funerals, wills and other matters at the bedside.

Dear Ann Landers: I liked your response to the postman's wife whose husband was not appreciated by the people on his route when he performed the extra courtesies, such as paying the postage due out of his own pocket and collecting later payments.

We in Anchorage, Alaska, have expressed, both privately and publicly, our gratitude to postal carriers and we'd like to share with you and your readers the story of their heroism and generosity.

In March of 1964 we had some terrifying earthquakes. Virtually all lines of communication were destroyed, but the mail went through. The first news our families received that we were all reached them by mail. A special delivery letter arrived at "our" home two days after the earthquake. It was an invitation from relatives offering a place to live if we needed it.

Our road was gone and many houses on our block were destroyed, but the postmen brought the mail. His home was damaged, too. He had no heat or water, but he was on the job.

We have let our postmen know how much we appreciate them, but it would be very generous of you to print a word or two under "confidential" in your column. Will you? — ALASKAN SOUNDDOUGH

Dear All: I'd rather do more than that, so I'm printing your letter — every word of it.

Dear Ann Landers: After exchanging Christmas gifts for several years I am very hurt because a friend accepted my gift, thanked me profusely and made no mention that she did not intend to reciprocate as usual. (Finances were not a factor here.)

I believe she should have told me several weeks before Christmas that she no longer wished to exchange gifts. I would not then have bought her a gift and could have spent a similar amount on an orphan or someone who might not receive much at Christmas time. Do you agree? — POST - HOLIDAY GRIPE

Dear Post: I doubt that you would have felt more kindly toward the woman had she telephoned and said she wished to put an end to the gift giving.

It's always difficult to terminate a practice which has become traditional. However, it sounds as if this friendship was dangling by a thread—gift or no gift.

Ann Landers will be glad to help with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Washington Here Is Why U.S. Is Using Gas in Viet Nam Attacks

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Top military men for some time have advocated the discreet use of nondeadly gas in South Viet Nam.

There are three reasons for this:

1. Incapacitating gas can disable a man long enough to capture him. Artillery, napalm or other conventional weapons usually leave the Reds dead or able to run away.

In hide-and-seek guerrilla war, prisoners are 10 times as valuable as dead enemy troops. This is because military intelligence (much of which comes from prisoners) is the difference between a sweep by government troops into Viet Cong territory and finding nothing—or capturing the Reds flat-footed.

It's the difference between a Red Pleiku airfield attack that destroys a sizable number of our planes and one in which the Red infiltration is nipped in the bud.

It's the difference, too, between the Reds ambushing a South Vietnamese government column of troops and the government troops ambushing the ambushers.

2. For some time, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have sought to find some way to attack Viet Cong guerrillas hiding in farmers' houses without killing everyone in the infested villages.

The Viet Cong often move into a hamlet and deliberately let everyone know they're there so government forces will attack.

When the hamlet is bombed with artillery or napalm, the Reds "help" the villagers defend themselves—dig trenches, tend the wounded. With women, children, babies and old people killed and injured by government troops, the Reds find it easy to make converts.

One Viet Cong corporal told me some time back in a Cambodian border village "these bombings (by South Vietnamese) create more Communists than our propagandists ever could."

Gas that incapacitates people temporarily, but does no permanent harm, solves this problem. Troops can move in after the gas attack, separate Viet Cong agents and guerrillas from non-combatant villagers.

3. Since many VC guerrillas are closely related to loyal Vietnamese, we'll get more cooperation from non-Red villagers if they know we're out to capture rather than kill their sons, husbands and brothers.

The presently used gases are understood to be varieties of tear gas, which causes vomiting, crying and other disabling but temporary discomforts. ("For a little while you wish you were dead," says one man who's voluntarily been gassed with one of these chemicals.

"But afterward there are no ill effects at all.")

Another incapacitating gas that could be used causes the men who are gassed to be so happy and unconcerned that they don't care whether a war is going on or not. Once-serious soldiers will fool around and wander aimlessly in circles.

These gases are highly effective in suppressing riots. They're tricky to use in war. A gust of wind can blow the gas among friendly troops, who may or may not have sufficient gas masks or adequate training in their use.

Unless terrain and weather are just right, the gases dissipate quickly. Even under the best of gassing conditions, troops must move in quickly and with precision before the effects wear off.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration's switch to a softer line on how to start peace talks in Viet Nam raises a question about how thoroughly the problem was thought through in the first place.

The switch President Johnson made this week in his nationwide talk leaves the door open to an impression some of the U.S. policy is being made up as it goes along, except for the basic, original determination.

That part of the policy has always been clear: to save South Viet Nam from a Communist takeover.

But Johnson started out with a hard-nosed policy when, immediately after the Red guerrillas attacked an American air base, on Feb. 7 he ordered Communist North Viet Nam bombed.

And the White House explained: what was wanted was a "clear indication" from the Reds that they were ready to stop attacking the South. Later Johnson said he wanted peace talks conducted "under conditions that would be productive."

And so on.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Dean Rusk was echoing this line, almost to the point of banality, even though the repeated American bombing of North Viet Nam put no visible dent in the guerrillas. They kept on fighting.

As time passed the administration's tactics and position, as Johnson outlined it, were being criticized at home and abroad, by friends, neutrals, Russia and Red China.

It's understandable that in the beginning the administration must have felt the hard line on peace talks was necessary to convince the Reds that American policy and bombings were not just gestures to save face.

Two months of bombings brought no cries for peace from the Communists. And the criticism increased. Then Wednesday night Johnson abandoned the policy of laying down conditions before discussions could start.

(Johnson, however, said plainly the American bombings wouldn't stop and the United States wouldn't pull out "under the cloak of a meaningless agreement.")

But the switch on the peace talks, slight as it was, brought praise at home and abroad. Johnson also got criticism, not only from the Red Chinese who called his talk "lies and deception," but from Republicans, too.

It's hard to believe this new policy couldn't have been the policy from the beginning since the continued bombings, in the past as in the future, would if anything could, convince the Reds of American determination.

The very fact that Johnson finally made his broadcast explanation was also, in effect, a switch. He had been under pressure for weeks to make such a talk. But he and Rusk relied on cryptic, repetitious statements.

It's possible that by eliminating preconditions to a peace discussion Johnson now has put the burden on the Communist world to start negotiations. But that's probably sheer optimism.

The Chinese not only quickly repudiated Johnson's talk but the North Vietnamese, as usual, have said nothing. What's lacking is a knowledge of what's going on in the Communists' heads.

They may still feel, if they stick it out, they can gobble all South Viet Nam where half the population is not supporting either side.

This indifference of the South Vietnamese is good evidence that the United States, although it has been helping South Viet Nam for years, has done a miserably poor job of trying to convince the majority of the people they should be anti-Communist.

Perhaps the answer is that the United States for all these years put too much time, effort and money into worrying about whoever was running the government at the moment and not worrying enough about the people.

We asked her to tell our readers what she plans to serve at her first seder supper this Passover (April 17) to her two sons and their wives and her five grandchildren. The older son, an attorney, will recite the blessing over the wine and read aloud the story of Passover.

Mrs. Silberman will set her table with the finest linens and china and ancestral silver candlesticks and Kiddush cups. The ceremonial Seder plate will contain a shank bone, a roasted egg, bitter herbs (horseradish), some greens such as lettuce or parsley, a mixture of nuts, grated apples, cinnamon and wine, and a strip of cinnamon bark to symbolize the bricks without straw the Jews were forced to make in Egypt. Next to this ceremonial plate at the head of the table will be placed a Kiddush cup, a decanter of wine, a large goblet for Elijah, a dish of salt water and three matzo balls placed one on top of the other in a matzo bowl.

Hard cooked eggs and bowls of salted water are then passed. Chicken soup with matzo balls begins the dinner. Then, stuffed roast turkey, giblet gravy made with potato starch, cranberry sauce, extra large matzo balls browned in chicken fat or vegetable shortening, a large ring made of carrots and sweet potatoes and filled with green beans and almonds. She serves cole slaw "because the children like it." And for dessert instead of the usual Passover sponge cake, she makes a light cocoa cake with either potato flour or matzo cake meal, with icing of white egg and sugar. Then come tea and coffee (without cream or milk) and Passover mints. Matzo balls are served during the meal, also Passover wine. "We have Palestinian white wine, too, because Charles (Crisis in Black and White) Says Passover wine is too sweet for him."

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Renew Hope of Cripples

By Buying Easter Seals

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Easter, coming as it does in the spring of the year, is for many persons a time of renewed vigor and increased hope.

You can make it a time of renewed hope for cripples of all ages by supporting the Easter Seal campaign.

Although most people know about the Easter Seals put out by the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., most of us don't know as much as we should about the work being done by this organization.

Medical science has provided preventive and curative measures for many diseases but in spite of these advances the number of persons in this country who are either crippled from birth (an estimated 7 for every 100 births) or later through disease or accident has steadily grown.

One reason for this is the increase in the total population. Another is an increase in accidents in and around the home. This takes an especially heavy toll among the preschool children. Furthermore, medical advances themselves, by saving the lives of persons who would otherwise have died, have increased the number who are alive but crippled.

Our job as citizens is to see to it that these persons are not saved for a meaningless or helpless existence but are given a chance to realize their highest usefulness. The potentialities of our cripples are often amazingly great. The key to helping these persons lies in a single word—rehabilitation.

The many techniques of rehabilitation, although available for over 40 years have received a tremendous impetus since World War II. Although Easter Seal funds provide professional care for all kinds of crippling diseases, most of the effort goes to persons with major deformities or diseases of the bones and joints. The services include physiotherapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, education to fit a cripple to earn a living and sheltered workshops where working with others who are similarly afflicted helps one to forget his handicap.

Also provided are diagnostic clinics, rehabilitation centers, treatment centers, aid for the household and sales outlets for products made by the crippled. One very valuable service is the provision of braces, crutches and other appliances to children on a loan basis because they are quickly outgrown and must be replaced with larger sizes. Another important service that has been expanding in recent years is the provision of summer residential and day camps for crippled children.

This is only a partial list of the services of this organization. Where can you find a worthwhile cause?

Young Mrs. Brown held down a good-paying job she liked and needed until a few weeks before her baby was born. She would like to go back to the job if she could only find someone to look after her baby during her working hours.

But finding someone she is willing to trust her baby with is a problem—a big problem.

Young Mrs. Smith has just had a baby, too. She has never worked outside her home, and doesn't want to.

She sometimes feels a little guilty about this, since the Smiths are barely managing to get by on the husband's pay check. She often wishes there were some kind of paid work she could do at home.

In every community there are many, many young homemakers like Mrs. Brown and many, many like Mrs. Smith.

Why doesn't some woman's organization in every community take on the task of setting up a system where Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Smith can get together and work out a simple solution to their problems?

Since Mrs. Brown wants to work outside her home and Mrs. Smith would love to earn some extra money right at home, why couldn't Mrs. Smith care for Mrs. Brown's baby as well as her own?

If the mothers brought together had babies of the same age and on the same schedule, it wouldn't be too difficult for the stay-at-home mother to look after two babies instead of one.

And if the mothers were matched according to intelligence and education, the mother turning her baby's care over to another woman would feel satisfied that her child would receive excellent care.

Here's a "natural" for women's organizations.

What is more important than helping young mothers work out the very real and very pressing problems of how to contribute to the family income without neglecting their young?

A Passover Treat

One of our neighbors, Mrs. Seppy I. Silberman, is the gracious and cultured mother of Charles E. Silberman, author of "Crisis in Black and White" and winner of the Four Freedoms top literary award. Her son, who is also a senior editor of Fortune Magazine, insists his mother's matzo balls are the best in the world. We are inclined to agree. Sometimes when she makes them, she sends a bowlful to us. They are light and tender and fit deliciously into any menu, kosher or otherwise.

Includes Health Care For Aged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed legislation Thursday night for a vast enlargement of the Social Security system, including comprehensive health services for the aged and a general boost in retirement benefits.

The $6-billion bill goes well beyond President Johnson's original recommendations, but he embraced it enthusiastically and his supporters acclaimed it as a move toward the "Great Society" Johnson advocates.

A 313-115 roll call vote swept the bill to the Senate, where it faces hearings and other procedural steps probably for at least six weeks.

Republicans in the House fought for a substitute, similar to the administration bill but lacking the element of increased payroll tax for hospitalization.

When the substitute lost, 236 to 191, Republicans were free, so far as their party was concerned, to vote either way on the administration bill.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the Republican leader, urged support of the substitute but said that his party leadership had recommended no guidelines in the event of its failure. He said it would be quite understandable for many Republicans to vote for the administration bill, which contained much that had originally been advocated by Republicans.

Ford, however, voted against the measure.

On substituting the Republican bill, 128 Republicans were joined by 63 Democrats, while 223 Democrats and 10 Republicans opposed the change.

On final passage of the administration bill 248 Democrats and 65 Republicans voted for it, 42 Democrats and 73 Republicans against.

The closing debate turned largely on the question whether the Republican substitute, drawing more from the general treasury, or the administration bill with an increased payroll tax to pay most of the cost, was the more responsible measure.

The bill would make the greatest single change in the Social Security system since it was enacted in 1935, directly benefiting some 20 million persons and raising payroll taxes for most workers and their employers.

By writing a health benefit into the Social Security retirement plan, it would climax efforts dating back to 1942 and especially intensified during the past eight years when "medical care" became a fighting word in congressional committee rooms.

Charges and denials that the system is a springboard to socialized medicine continued to sound during the closing debate.

The farthest-reaching health benefit under the legislation — going to practically all Americans 65 or older — would be the right to a maximum of 60 days hospitalization and 20 days nursing home care for each illness. The patient would pay the first $40.

Available to the elderly who wanted it would be an additional insurance plan covering doctor fees; one brother, Harley Henson of Midland, Mich. and four sisters: Mrs. Lucille Mast of Hillview, Mrs. Kathleen Willis, Mrs. James Smith and Mrs. Marvella Goodman, all of White Hall.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Mehl Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Saturday. Burial will be in Carrollton City cemetery.

Old age retirement payments under Social Security would be increased 7 per cent across the board, with a minimum increase of $4 a month. Accordingly, any retiree could sign up for the optional health insurance and still have more cash in hand than he does now.

Clay went with angry aimlessness into the living room. He was turning to the bar when Diane, wearing a knee-length robe, opened the inner door of the bath that connected through to the patio. Without noticing him, she turned along the hallway toward the bedrooms beyond. He took time to whisk up another martini and gulp it down before following her. He found her in the master bedroom, seated at a vanity bench, combing her wet hair. Seeing his reflection in the mirror, she stopped and turned in surprise to face him.

"What's wrong, Clay? I've never seen you look so grim." He went closer. "I can't get anything out of David. In the hospital he couldn't say much with a detective camping out beside his door, but now—Have you talked with him since he came home?" "I haven't had a chance. Sara's been fussing over him every minute."

"You know his amnesia is faked, don't you?" "It was the first time he had even seen Diane stiffen toward him. Natural, he supposed—filial loyalty."

She answered him with a chill in her voice. "You know nothing of the sort, and I don't believe it."

His spirits sagged. This was a fool's errand. But he persisted. "Di, I wouldn't be coming to you with this if I didn't need help. Both Cyn and I need it badly. David's the one who can give it to us, probably the only one. I'd loved you'd try to get through to him, try to make him realize that."

"Clay, I'm sorry, but I'm really concerned about Dad, and I won't do anything to upset him."

"Diane's eyes had flashed a warning. Clay didn't need to glance over his shoulder; he knew the reason for it. Larry had been looking for his wife, as he always did, and now he had found her. He was coming into the room."

"Did I hear you saying—" Larry put in a pointed aside to Diane: "Hadden't you better get dressed?" Then he went on to Clay: "Saying you'd like to get through to Dad?"

"You did."

Diane hadn't moved, except to clutch the V neck of her robe. She seemed to be holding her breath.

"So would I," Larry put a slight edge on his voice. "But he won't give me an opening. Nobody seems to want to talk about what's uppermost in our minds."

"Larry, please don't press Dad," Diane spoke in almost a whisper. "I told you, he can't talk about something he's all blank about."

"I can't quite swallow that. Everybody's deliberately clamping up. Nobody seems to realize I'm also concerned. Just being a member of this family involves me. I want to know what's going on around here."

Larry stalked out and Clay, with a hopeless shrug, followed him.

Clay and Cynthia said little on their way home. Cynthia was in the house her first move was to pull off her shoes.

"Don't mind me if I fall straight into bed. I'm utterly exhausted."

Cynthia disappeared down the hallway dragging her heels. Clay went into the kitchen to mix a needed drink.

He carried his drink into the bedroom. He glanced around and his gaze came to rest on a slip of paper lying on the floor beside the waste-paper basket.

He picked it up, telling himself that Cynthia had tossed it hurriedly and missed. It was a sales slip. It bore the imprint of Martin Brothers, the largest department store in Palmport. It was dated today. It was a cash sale. A single item: 1 Dress.

Cynthia came out of the bathroom.

Clay had opened her wardrobe closet. He was rapidly rummaging through the clothing hanging there. He turned to peer at her, holding the sales slip in one hand.

The angry hardness in his face frightened her. She lifted one hand, pressed her fingertips to her pale lips.

"A quick trip into town this afternoon to get a new green dress just like the one I wanted you to wear. But you couldn't find another exactly like it. You came close, but I was right—the dress you wore tonight was a little different. You paid cash for it instead of charging it so it wouldn't show on the bill. And the other one is gone. Why did you get rid of it, Cyn? Did it get torn in your fight with Howie?"

She could not answer. He crimped the slip, hurled it and hit the wastebasket dead center.

"This is it. No more lying, no more evasions, no more double talk. Now you're going to tell me the truth."

longest suit. It is a far better general rule to stop a while and decide as to whether or not declarer holds as many cards in that suit as you do.

East was playing a very relaxed game. He was pleased when his partner opened the queen of hearts against the spade slam and signaled with the seven spot.

Declarer led dummy's king of trumps and East dropped the three of clubs. He had five of them and certainly thought that he could spare one.

He could not have been more wrong! The club discard led South bring home a slam contract that normally would have been wrecked on the rocks of distribution.

All South had to do was to cash dummy's ace and king of diamonds so as to get rid of his losing heart. Then he led the queen of clubs.

East covered with his king. Not that it mattered since the damage had already been done. South won with his ace and led the jack.

West ruffed and led a second heart which South ruffed. Then South trumped a low club in dummy, drew trumps and made the last two tricks with his last two clubs.

If East had thought carefully at trick two he would have noted the possibility that declarer would hold five clubs. He would also have noted that he could well afford a heart discard, whereupon South would have had no way to make 12 tricks.

dictionary open on my desk. —POLLY
DEAR POLLY — My Pointer relieves needless anxiety after an important item or paper has been mailed. I have found that by inserting a sheet of paper (the size of the mailing envelope) and the same size carbon paper inside the envelope before addressing (or making notations), a duplicate of the exact "From" and "To" addresses will be made. I keep this with all pertinent papers until I receive an acknowledgement from the recipient. If there is too long a delay I can check back to learn if I misdirected the envelope. —HELEN

DEAR POLLY — I am sure many of the readers have dogs so they can appreciate this hint. To keep dogs warm, line the floor of the doghouse with a thick layer of pine needles. Besides the benefit of a cozy house, he will remain free of fleas. —MRS. D. K. F.

GIRLS — I am sure many of you dog owners will try this. It sounds logical on both counts, but I don't have a dog and my friends who have dogs do not have doghouses. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When eating chicken or other food eaten with the fingers, we use clean sponges instead of paper napkins that stick to the fingers. Wet the sponges and put one at each place at the table. After the meal I wash the sponges, let them dry and put them back in a plastic bag for another time. This is really great for the kids who keep wanting to wash their hands all through the meal. —MRS. Double-Talk Translations Listed

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — It has been sometime since we've had a class drill in double-talk. So let's have one now.
Double-talk enables you to say what you should say in a situation although you don't really mean it at all.
Parents use it when talking to children, and vice versa, and kids use it when talking to other kids. It's good at any age.
Here are a few examples followed by the literal meaning:
"Just a second, Mommy." If she really wanted me right now, she'd have screamed louder.
"My daddy can lick your daddy." I've got to bluff this bully some way.
"Gee, I had my theme right in this book. It must have dropped out in the bus on the way to school." I got so sleepy watching television last night I forgot to write it.
"I'd be glad to help you with your homework, but your teacher said she wanted you to do it by yourself." That new arithmetic is crazy. I don't understand it at all.
"This is the very last time I'm going to tell you to get ready for bed." After that, your father can start telling you.
"I don't want any dinner, Mama. I just don't feel hungry." Besides, I've got three candy bars hidden in my room.
"But Mom, every other girl in my class is already wearing

Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The British are trying austerity again to pinch their economy while Americans talk of boosting the U.S. economy still higher through even less restraint.
In both cases one of the prime goals is the same — to bolster the individual currencies, the British pound sterling and the American dollar, in international money markets.
The British move this week is largely tied to increasing taxes. American business stimulants, past and contemplated, are tied to cutting taxes.
London figures individual Britons should be discouraged from buying so many imported goods and overheating the home economy so much that United Kingdom manufacturers don't try hard enough to sell their goods abroad.
Washington figures that the American economic growth rate should be increased, more goods should be produced, so that the excess will inspire producers to try harder to sell still more abroad.
The U.S. government also is asking Americans to keep their dollars home and lend less to foreigners and invest less abroad. The British say they'll try to keep American dollars still coming their way.
First returns indicate that both the American and the British monetary plans are working at the moment.
While both the United States and the United Kingdom have been having trouble keeping their currencies looking as good as gold, the problem has risen from significantly different circumstances.
The United States for years has been exporting more than it has been importing. The loss of dollars and gold comes from something else. The favorable balance of trade has been more than offset by government economic and military aid to other nations, private investment and loans abroad, free-spending American tourists.
The British have been importing more than they've exported. British manufacturers have seen the price of their products rise — meaning profits at home but also loss of some world markets to more competitively priced goods, made by Americans, Europeans, Japanese, even the Communist countries.
So Britain is trying austerity to get its world trade and its pound sterling in a healthier state.
The dollar already is healthy. Washington wants to make sure it doesn't catch another chill like the one that plagued it at the start of this year.

high heels." If she lets me buy a pair, I'll be the first in our class to have them.
"Cross my heart, I'll never do it again." I sure didn't think she'd catch me this time.
"I didn't know it was that time. I guess the teacher musta kept us late." If she ever finds out where Jimmy and I went, I'm really gonna get it.
"Quit whining. When I was your age I had to walk three miles to school." Well, three blocks anyway.
"I just feel dizzy, and my stomach hurts. Can't I stay home today?" I'm unprepared in history, English and geography.
"Honest, Elizabeth, you're my very best friend in the whole world. Whatever made you think I was best friends with Mary Anne? She's so stuck up." I wish Mary Anne didn't like Susie better than me.
"You and Daddy say you love me, but you don't really." If I say this and start crying, maybe she won't spank me after all.
"The class in double-talk is now dismissed. I must compliment you, children. You behaved very well today." Heavens, how can I put up with these noisy brats until vacation time comes?

Hits MIGs 25 Miles From China

With the report on the Skyhawk, American announcements show a loss of 27 planes — U.S. and South Vietnamese — during the 20 strikes north of the border. The Communists now claim their gunners have downed 165.

The encounter between the MIGs and the American planes was the third in a week.

Last Saturday three MIGs approached a formation of U.S. planes over North Viet Nam but did not tangle with them.

On Sunday, MIGs attacked a formation of U.S. planes and shot down two F105s.

The Navy planes involved in the battle today were F4C Phantoms were assigned to a special fighters in use today. The Phantoms were assigned to a special "anti-MIG patrol."

About 140 U.S. Navy planes attacked Tam Dao bridge, 120 miles south of Hanoi, while 80 Air Force jets attacked two other bridges in raids today.

One Navy A4 jet was shot down by groundfire, but the pilot was rescued.

In Saigon, American authorities announced that two more battalions of U.S. Marines and a squadron of Marine jet fighters will land shortly in Viet Nam.

There were indications that the Marines would begin landing in a matter of hours. There had been reports for several days that the 7th Fleet standing off-shore loaded with Marines ready to land.

A U.S. statement said the additional Marines were requested by the government of South Viet Nam.

Both the reinforcements and the original contingent that landed last month are from the 9th Marine Brigade, formerly stationed on Okinawa.

The statement said a battalion landing team and a squadron of F4 planes would land at Da Nang.

To "improve security in the Hue area," an additional battalion landing team "will be introduced into the area," the announcement said.

Some 80 U.S. Air Force bombers and fighters struck two vital bridges in North Viet Nam today. U.S. officials said all the planes returned to their base safely.

The officials said the raiders wrecked bridges at Qui Vinh, 10 miles north of the border, and at Khe Kien, 20 miles northeast of the border. One is a railroad bridge and the other a road bridge.

A South Vietnamese military court in Saigon today ordered the execution of two Viet Cong terrorists, one for taking part in the U.S. Embassy bombing and the other for trying to blow up an American officers' billet.

No date was set for either execution, but it was believed they would be carried out swiftly.

The court sentenced the driver of the getaway motorbike in the embassy bombing, Nguyen Van Hai, despite the Viet Cong's threat to execute an American civilian prisoner in reprisal.

In Washington, the White House was informed of Hai's sentence but made no comment.

The State Department said earlier that Hertz, of Leesburg, Va., "has committed no offense" and should be accorded the "basic humanitarian protection demanded by international law and rudimentary standards of decency."

Companies disconnected heating units.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag inspected the flooded area in a helicopter. At least 20 Minnesota highways have been closed.

About 400 families were evacuated in Waterloo, Iowa, Thursday night when the Cedar River flowed into the town.

Overflow waters receded in the northwestern section, but new flood threats appeared in the state's central and eastern counties.

A call went out for volunteers in Des Moines to help fill sandbags for protection along the Des Moines River.

Portions of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Wisconsin also were in the beginning stages of flooding.

IT YOU TAKE SILVER OUT OF COINS—By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you take the silver out of dimes, quarters, halves and cartwheels, what do you use instead?

It's a question that must soon be answered, because silver supplies are reaching a crisis stage. And it's a question that gives different answers from mining men, vending-machine interests and economists. Such silver substitutes as nickel, stainless steel, and the metal columbium have been suggested.

But the prize for the most original suggestion of all has to go to Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif.

Hosmer proposes a dab of uranium in each coin — depleted uranium, of course, so the money wouldn't burn a hole in anyone's pocket.

Hosmer reasoned this way in an interview: One of the main dangers in lowering the silver content of the coins, or eliminating it entirely, is that hoarders would instantly put every silver dime, quarter and half dollar in the country in an old sock under the mattress on the theory that the old coins are worth more.

This would be called Gresham's Law — bad money drives out good money. It could cause monetary chaos.

But, Hosmer said, the Treasury could artificially peg the price of depleted uranium at exactly the price of silver, so that each of the new coins would be worth exactly as much as the old ones, and no one would be tempted to hoard silver coins or melt them down.

Radioactive? Not so, said Hosmer, who is a member of the Senate-Atomic Energy Committee. The depleted uranium, or U238, would have no more radioactivity than the family television set, he said.

And the beautiful part, according to Hosmer, is that the United States has a big supply of depleted uranium, a byproduct of the manufacture of nuclear weapons. And since other countries don't make the stuff, they can't throw the U.S. monetary standard out of kilter by selling a lot of it.

Before retiring, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon had this to say at a Feb. 15 House Appropriations hearing:

"It is very clear we cannot continue with our present silver coinage. We only have about three years of silver left."

Western Cracks 15 Hits In Easy Edge

Returning from a recent southern baseball trip, the Western Illinois Leathernecks stopped off in Jacksonville Thursday afternoon just long enough to clobber the MacMurray Highlanders 18-4. Rich Howard, a southpaw, went all the way for the victory, scattering six hits over the nine inning stint, while chipping into the offensive cause with a three run homer in the fourth.

Western opened the scoring in the first, welcoming Clan starter Randy Rose with a four spot. Rich Rakowski opened the game with a triple to left and was followed by successive doubles by Terry Brecher and Ed Brooks. With two in and no out, Rose fed Leatherneck center-fielder Dave Ford a fast ball down the pipe that landed well over the left field fence.

In the second, Western batted around, running their margin to 10-0. Rose managed to retire the first batter, but then Rakowski tripled again and scored on a fielders choice. After a walk and a single up the middle, Doug Halpenny collected Western's second round tripper of the day with two men aboard. Clan hurler Bob Gay relieved Rose and put out the fire with little trouble.

MacMurray broke the ice in the bottom of the frame, scoring on a base hit by Tom Zuckerman, two walks and a fielders choice.

Player Takes Lead In Masters Field

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — South Africa's Gary Player, an icy little killer in black, carved out a seven-under-par 65 for the first-round lead in the Masters Golf Tournament Thursday and became the chief culprit in the terrible slaughter of the proud Augusta National course.

Another turn of the ball on two holes—a putt on the second and a magnificent sand blast on the 12th—and the craftsman from Johannesburg would have bettered the Masters record of 64, set by Lloyd Mangrum in the first round in 1940.

Even so, it was Player—with out a bogey and flying every approach at the pin like a rifle shot—who led the mass birdie assault on Bob Jones' 6,980-yard, par 72 green monster.

With perfect playing conditions — temperature in the mid-80s, no wind and lush, slow greens — the course took its

REDS BOMB PETERS AND CHISOX, 5-1

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds bombarded Chicago's 20-game winner, Gary Peters, for 12 hits in six innings Thursday and breezed to a 5-1 victory over the White Sox on the first stop of a four-day northward tour by the two clubs.

Deron Johnson drove in two runs with successive singles against Peters and hit a homer off Hoyt Wilhelm to lead the Reds' 13-hit attack.

Frank Robinson hit a two-run double in the third. Jim O'Toole, Cincinnati's opening day mound nominee, pitched the first three rounds and with Sammy Ellis and Bill McCool held the Sox to four singles.

ROUGH ON THE RAWHIDE — Big guns for Western Illinois University's Leathernecks Wednesday in their 18-4 victory over MacMurray college here are l-r Angie Vallejo, Guy Ricci, coach; Rich Howard and Dave Ford. Vallejo singled twice, scored twice and stole two bases; Howard was the winning pitcher, scattering six hits and allowing one earned run while Ford slammed two home runs.

JHS Track Squad Cops 5-Team Meet

Jacksonville senior sprinter Bob Lomelino captured three wins Thursday afternoon to spark the Crimsos to a first place finish in a five team track meet held at the victors track.

Lomelino copped triumphs in the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes for 15 of the Jacks 73 points. Carlville had to accept runner-up honors with a total of 65. Following in the scoring column were Southwestern with 47, Griffin with 24 and Winchester with 3.

The Crimsos made a near clean sweep in the running events, taking six firsts and five seconds in the 10 classes. Trouble came in the field competition, however, which was dominated by Carlville and Southwestern.

Aside from Lomelino, the only other individual winner for Jacksonville was Dave Barnes who captured the mile with a time of 4:53.5. Bob Donovan, who edged out Barnes in the same event last Tuesday, finished second in the run.

Jacksonville took two of the three relays with record breaking wins in both the 880 yard and frosh-soph races. Art McPike, Jim Brunner, Abe Brown and Benny Richardson grabbed the frosh competition in 1:40.5, while the varsity quartet of Jim Mann, Dennis Portee, Larry Nortrup and Frank Wildhagen legged the half mile in 1:37.5.

Ron Young captured the board jump competition with a leap of 19' 2 3/4", while teammates Rich Lange and Dave Lucher copped the shot put and high jump events.

Tomorrow's meet in Jacksonville will mark the last time that Lomelino and weight man Tom Andrews will be able to compete for the Crimsos. Both men will be celebrating their 19th birthdays and will be ineligible for further high school athletic competition.

Russell Sparks 112-94 Celtics Playoff Margin

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell spurred ball hawking, sharp-shooting Boston to a 112-94 National Basketball Association playoff victory over Philadelphia Thursday night.

The Celtics moved into a 2-1 edge in the best-of-seven Eastern Division finals, which continue Friday night on the 76ers' home floor.

Russell, who blamed his own sub-par play for the Celtics' second game defeat, scored 12 of his 19 points in the first quarter. He also had two assists, one blocked shot and one steal in the quarter.

OWNERS, PLAYERS OF NFL IN MEET

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — National Football League players and owners met separately Thursday as a prelude to thrashing out pension problems at a joint session Friday.

Baltimore end Ordell Braase, players association president, said "getting representation on the pension board is our prime objective."

Braase indicated the players favor a setup more far-reaching than merely adding a representative to the board. It now comprises NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and two men not connected with football.

"Until the meeting with the owners our plans must remain confidential," Braase said.

Natemeyer Homer Nips Rocket Nine

ARENZVILLE — A three-run homer by Bob Natemeyer which ignited a five-run sixth inning proved to be the key blow here Thursday afternoon as Triopia downed Routt, 10-7, in a PMSC conference tilt, the opening game for both clubs.

Triopia trailed 7-5 entering the decisive sixth frame, but came from behind to take the decision when Natemeyer reversed it with his roundtripper and the Trojans pushed across two insurance tallies.

Routt had taken the front with a big five-run fifth for a 6-5 difference.

Triopia hurler Phelps Shepard fanned nine Rockets in his five innings of work, toiling the first four and the seventh. Harlan Fricke worked the fifth and sixth frames. Fricke had trouble with his control in the two frames pitched, walking three and hitting three batters.

Routt gathered only five hits off the two Triopia hurlers, but the Trojans amassed but four off Leo Carroll in his five innings.

Triopia jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first on walks to Natemeyer and Dean Fricke, then after an out, walks to Shepard and Bill Meier, forcing in the tally.

Once more in the second the Trojans scored a single tally, on two Rocket boots and a single by Larry Crews.

Rockets Finally Score
Routt got on the scoreboard with a single run in the third when Tom Murgatroy singled, stole second, took third on a passed ball and scored on Dennis Bennett's single.

Triopia pushed across three in the third on hits by Natemeyer and Fricke, and a pair of walks, for a 5-1 edge. Routt's second run came in the fourth on three free passes and a infield boot.

Routt had their big frame in the fifth on two walks, two hit batsmen, two Triopia errors and a double by Mike Fitzpatrick, for a 6-5 edge.

The sixth proved to be the difference. Charley Paul started it by being hit by a Carroll pitch and Crews walked. Natemeyer unloaded for the go-ahead runs and a 7-6 Triopia edge. The inning continued with Dean Fricke singled and Roger Burrus reached base on a Routt error. Fricke scoring on the miscue. Shepard tripled in the final run but was thrown out at the plate trying for a roundtripper.

Flood Paces 6-1 Edge Over Mets

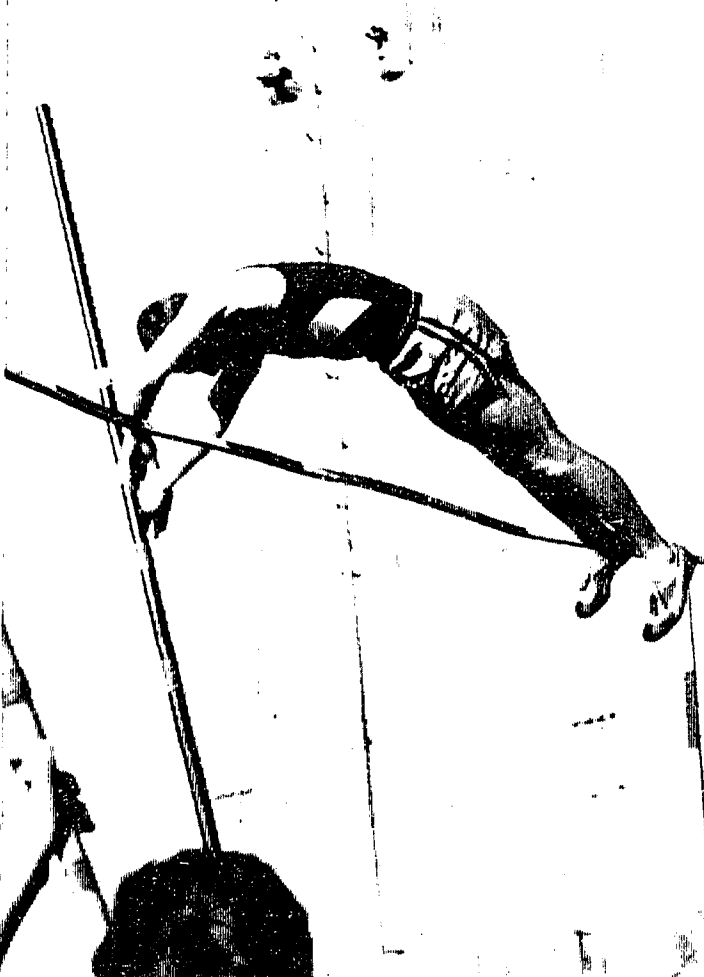

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Curt Flood led an 11-hit St. Louis attack with three singles and a double Thursday in a 6-1 victory over the New York Mets in the final Florida exhibition baseball game for both teams.

The Cards evened their record at 13-13 and the Mets finished 11-13 with one tie.

Kenny Boyer chipped in with two doubles and a single for the Cards and Ed Spiezio, St. Louis' spring whiz, came through with a triple that boosted his batting average to .533. It was his 16th hit in 30 at bats.

The Mets scored their only run in the sixth on three singles off Nelson Briles. After Briles walked Bobby Klaus, loading the bases, the Cards brought in Barney Schultz who struck out Danny Napoleon.

Bob Purkey was the winner and Al Jackson, tuning up for Monday's opener, was charged with the defeat, allowing two

Jim Mann brings the baton across the finish line to complete a Jacksonville first in the 880-yard varsity relay. Other members of the winning foursome were Frank Wildhagen, Larry Nortrup and Dennis Portee.

SIU Rolls To Easy 18-1 Blueboy Win

CARBONDALE — Gene Vincent pitched and hit the Southern Illinois University diamond-men to an 18-1 triumph over Illinois College in a nine inning contest played here Thursday afternoon. Vincent went the distance, striking out 13 and walking only two, in gaining his third victory of the season.

The ball game was fairly close until the seventh inning when the roof fell in for the Blueboys. Southern sent 14 men to the plate in the frame, scoring nine runs on six hit, three walks and a pair of I.C. errors.

Southern jumped off on Blueboy starter Jim Brunner for a pair of runs in the first, while adding two more in both the third and fourth rounds. Run producing hits in the fourth were collected by S.I.U. center-fielder Tom Sidel and Ken Collins, but Pete Gallatin came in to put out the fire with one out and two on base.

In the big seventh inning, Vincent grand slammed after three consecutive walks to start the frame, and S.I.U. sent 10 more men to the plate before the outburst could be put down. Pete Pavesick also homered in the round with two men aboard, finishing the day with four out of six at the plate with 4 RBIs. I.C. scored their single tally in the top of the ninth on base hits by Bud Lawrence and Gene Gourley.

The Blueboys will be in action again next Saturday when they travel to Elmhurst for a twin-bill against the Principal College nine.

Dickson Mounds To Change Hands

The House passed and sent to the governor Thursday, a bill to transfer jurisdiction of Dickson Mounds State Memorial to the state museum.

The measure was sponsored in the house by Rep. C. R. Butcher (D-Beardstown) and would vest responsibility of the site in the state museum. It is now under the conservation department.

Dickson Mounds is the site of an old Indian burial ground. Some of the skeletons have been uncovered for public display.

Milton Thompson, museum director, has said that the museum, with its staff of archeologists, is in a better position to work with the project. The conservation department has no archeologists.

Both agencies favor the transfer according to Ratcliffe.

Plans for the forthcoming city election were discussed at the meeting.

Non-Red World Praises Johnson For Peace Offer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson won wide applause around the non-Communist world Thursday for his Southeast Asia peace offer, but a ringing rejection came from one of the most important quarters — Red China.

Peking's turnaround was expected. It had been predicted by U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson at a Cabinet meeting shortly before word of the Chinese broadcast denunciation arrived on news wires.

Stevenson, talking with newsmen after the White House session, held out hope that the Soviet Union would give a more "thoughtful" response. He declined to forecast North Vietnam's reply — generally regarded as crucial at this stage.

Other White House sources said Johnson, scanning the international horizon for Communist reaction, does not believe the Reds are ready for Vietnam peace talks now.

U.S. officials said that while the Soviet leadership continued to denounce U.S. activities in Vietnam, the Johnson offer was published in the government-controlled Soviet press. They said it was published also in Hanoi, which has opposed negotiations hitherto.

But Johnson went ahead with his two-pronged peace campaign announced in his Baltimore speech Wednesday night while Washington diplomacy gave the Communists more time to consider.

The President offered to engage in "unconditional discussion" with interested governments looking toward a Vietnam peace settlement. He also proposed a $1-billion U.S. contribution to economic development of Southeast Asia, whether the war ends or not.

Peking radio described the negotiations offer as a U.S. scheme to disarm the Vietnamese people and force them into the grip of the U.S. military.

And Johnson's aid offer, the Chinese declared, is "a political deal to weaken the South Vietnamese people's fight and dissolve the U.S. predicament. But that is a foolish daydream and a useless effort."

Among noteworthy events of the day:

— The President's proposal was given to four envoys representing 17 neutralist nations as a response to their plea last week for Viet Nam peace negotiations.

— The President scored a victory in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which reversed itself and voted 10 to 8 to restore $115 million it had chopped from Johnson's $1.7-billion in military aid requests for the coming year.

— Opinion in Congress ran largely along party lines. While Democratic leaders hailed Johnson's move, a group of 10 House Republicans denounced it as a repeat of "two old and unpromising themes — our willingness to continue to go it alone in the grinding jungle war, and our desire to send still more foreign aid dollars to Southeast Asia."

— The President scored a victory in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which reversed itself and voted 10 to 8 to restore $115 million it had chopped from Johnson's $1.7-billion in military aid requests for the coming year.

Mantle, Robinson Picked To Win MVP

By MURRAY CHASS

With 162 games to go, a pair of left fielders—one a newcomer to the position and the other an old hand—were selected Thursday as the probable Most Valuable Players for the 1965 baseball season.

In the annual Associated Press preseason poll, Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees was picked to win a record fourth American League MVP award and Cincinnati's Frank Robinson was named most likely to succeed as National League MVP. A nationwide total of 266 sports writers and broadcasters voted in the poll.

Mantle, the Yankees' new left fielder, was tabbed to lead his team, an unprecedented sixth straight pennant, but Robinson and the Reds will finish third in a close pennant fight with St. Louis and Philadelphia, according to the poll.

Both Slim Choices

The Cardinals and Yankees both were narrow choices to meet in the World Series for the second year in a row. New York was picked as AL pennant winners in a three-way paper battle with Baltimore and Chicago.

Robinson, the NL's Most Valuable Player in 1961, defeated San Francisco's Willie Mays 55 votes to 46. Mays was last year's pre-season choice.

Johnny Callison of Philadelphia, runner-up to St. Louis' Ken Boyer for last year's real MVP, placed third with 34 votes.

Mantle, his wobbly legs apparently forcing him out of center field permanently, outdrew another Robinson, Brooks of Baltimore, 58 votes to 35. Pete Ward of Chicago was third with 29 votes and Boog Powell of Baltimore fourth with 22.

The 33-year-old Mantle earned actual MVP honors in 1956, 1957 and 1962. He finished second last season to Brooks Robinson.

Mantle had been a center fielder since succeeding Joe DiMaggio there in 1952. Manager Johnny Kase's present plans call for Mantle to play left, where he appeared in a handful of games on the road last year.

Follow Robinson

Frank Robinson won the National League's MVP award in 1961 after leading the Reds to the pennant. He was fourth in last season's actual voting.

Following Robinson, Mays and Callison were Boyer with 18 votes. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Tommy Davis of Los Angeles with 11 each, and Sandy

Release Girl Held After Slaying Of Kin

MARION, Ill. (AP) — A Johnston City girl, charged with juvenile delinquency after the slayings of her mother and another woman, was released Thursday in the custody of her relatives.

"The problem of the drop-out is not just a problem of our society. We can't just blame it on social conditions," he said.

"We have to look at what we are teaching, and how we are teaching it. We must examine where we are going, and what we are doing."

"We must have a variety of programs, and ask again whether the education of 1965 is made for the people of 1965."

Humphrey spoke at a one-day symposium attended by teachers, school board members, superintendents, principals, and representatives of Parent-Teachers Association. The gathering was sponsored by the National Education Association, which is now observing "Teacher Career Month."

He said the Senate will pass the administration's education bill this week—"and that's just the beginning."

"If you have a good, nutritious diet, you may not need vitamin pills. If you have a poor, unbalanced diet, you do," he said.

The total includes 329 deaths through April 5 resulting from action by hostile forces and 128 from noncombat causes including airplane and helicopter accidents. Similar reports are issued periodically by the Pentagon.

Griggsville Doctor, School Head Differ On Cause Of Illness

GRIGGSVILLE—A Griggsville doctor and the superintendent of the Griggsville community school disagreed Thursday on what caused 43 pupils and two teachers to become violently sick at the school Wednesday.

Dr. Stefan Hyk, the only doctor in this western Illinois community of 1,240, said state inspectors who toured the school lunchroom Thursday told him it was probably food poisoning.

Hyk, who examined most of the patients, said he had treated them for food poisoning.

Almost all of the 465 students were operating about "90 miles per hour" Thursday, and enjoying the extra two days off from school.

But Supt. Earl Yund said inspectors from the Illinois Department of Public Instruction's vocational and lunchroom departments and inspectors from the Illinois Department of Public Health could find "no reason why we could not operate at any time."

School was dismissed Thursday, while inspectors toured the building.

Turkey Still In Question

Both men said the health department had not completed its analysis of the turkey salad luncheon served at the school the day of the illnesses.

But Dr. Hyk quoted inspectors as saying the government-

Rights Leaders Plan Voter Drive In South, Preaching Crusade In North

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Civil rights leaders are drawing plans for a Southwide campaign to register Negro voters and a Northern big-city crusade to preach nonviolence.

About 2,000 college students from the North, East and West will be enlisted in the voter campaign outlined Thursday by the Rev. Andrew Young, executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"We are planning to see how many we can get registered from Alabama to Virginia and including north Florida," Young said in an interview. He is a key man in the SCLC headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

He said the Negro voter drive in Alabama would continue to expand. SCLC staff members are working now to mobilize or bolster the campaign in six counties.

The Alabama House approved and sent to the Senate a proposal to limit the state voter literacy test to the ability to read and write. The difficult test now required has been under attack by Negro leaders.

At Selma, County Judge Hugh Mallory jailed two Negroes for contempt when they refused to move from one section of the courtroom to another. One was the Rev. James Bevel of SCLC.

Bevel and James Webb of Selma were sentenced to five days in jail and fined $50. The judge said they refused to move from a section reserved for "white persons, spectators and defendants."

Bevel was in court on a reckless driving charge. Trial was postponed.

Humphrey Raps Educators For School Dropouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey urged the schools to take a good, hard look at their programs and practices if they want to discourage youngsters from dropping out of school.

"When customers start leaving your store, it generally isn't the customer who is wrong," he told a meeting of educators Thursday.

Humphrey said "one million young people will leave school each year if we fail to make learning an exciting and challenging experience."

"The problem of the drop-out is not just a problem of our society. We can't just blame it on social conditions," he said.

"We have to look at what we are teaching, and how we are teaching it. We must examine where we are going, and what we are doing."

"We must have a variety of programs, and ask again whether the education of 1965 is made for the people of 1965."

Humphrey spoke at a one-day symposium attended by teachers, school board members, superintendents, principals, and representatives of Parent-Teachers Association. The gathering was sponsored by the National Education Association, which is now observing "Teacher Career Month."

He said the Senate will pass the administration's education bill this week—"and that's just the beginning."

"If you have a good, nutritious diet, you may not need vitamin pills. If you have a poor, unbalanced diet, you do," he said.

Cuba Says 53 Members Of Spy Ring Arrested

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Cuban government announced Thursday that Fidel Castro's security police had arrested 53 members of a spy ring, including the head of the Baptist Church in Cuba and several other clergymen.

The Baptist leader is the Rev. Herbert Caudill, 61, a veteran of 35 years in Cuban missionary work.

Caudill's son-in-law, James David Fite, a native of Fort Worth, Tex., also was arrested. Their wives were not arrested.

This was apparently the first time that Castro had jailed an American churchman, although exiles reported weeks ago that he had stepped up his campaign against Protestant churches.

The government in a broadcast monitored in Miami, said the Rev. Mr. Caudill and the other churchmen "working under the cloak of religion, organized a counterrevolutionary group for missions of espionage and subversion."

The Southern Baptist Mission Board in Atlanta, Ga., denied that the Rev. Mr. Caudill was engaged in espionage.

"We doubt that any Cuban loves his country more than Herbert Caudill," a spokesman said. "He would do nothing to injure his Christian witness."

The Rev. Mr. Caudill, a native of Clinchport, Va., who first went to Cuba in 1929, returned to the United States last year for an eye operation and had been back in Cuba for only a few months.

Before these latest arrests, exile estimates of the number of Protestant preachers behind bars in Cuba ranged from 30 to "incalculable."

At least eight other Baptist ministers are reported to have been arrested within the past three months, and 50 Baptist churches fined for violations.

Baptist headquarters report there are 17,888 registered Baptists in Cuba.

The first crackdown on Protestants in Cuba was made after the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt in 1961.

The predominant Roman Catholic Church felt the crackdown earlier. Many priests left Cuba, and church schools closed. More recently, however, government interference with Catholics was reported diminishing.

6 Church Groups Envision Unity In Near Future

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Delegations from six major Christian denominations declared Thursday they have reached broad new accords, pointing "the way toward a united church."

At the close of its fourth annual session, the Consultation on Church Union said its action to start drafting a specific plan "marks a decisive turning point" in approach to the goal.

Intensive educational efforts were urged throughout the churches to acquaint rank-and-file members with the progress, problems and prospects.

The church representatives said that after more than three years of preliminary exploration, their "deepened understanding of one another" and "clear vision of the unity which lies before us" have "now reached a critical point."

For the first time, they added, "we have felt able, and therefore compelled, to begin the delicate and equally commanding task of sketching, realistically and practically, the outline of a united church."

A newly-named special commission was put to work on the job.

While so far six predominantly white denominations have been directly involved, three Negro Methodist bodies were expected to become participants now that the process has advanced to the planning stage.

This would involve nine denominations with a total of more than 25,000,000 members in the effort. Their reunion would be the largest in Protestant history.

Aluminum, USW To Open Talks Late In April

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers Union and the aluminum industry said Thursday they will open contract talks later this month. The opening will come under a shadow cast by the union's bitter and still unsettled election.

The struggle for leadership between incumbent President David J. McDonald and I.W. Abel already has been blamed for a strike in the can industry and for crippling basic steel negotiations.

The aluminum talks will start in New York April 29, two days before steelworkers can strike the nation's steel mills and about the same time union leaders are expected to declare a winner in the election.

Howard Hague, union vice president, was appointed coordinator of the committees that will bargain separately with the five major producers.

Hague, however, reportedly was defeated along with McDonald in the Feb. 9 election.

McDonald is believed to have lost to Abel, USW secretary-treasurer, by several thousand votes. But he could still win depending on the outcome of protests he has filed alleging voting violations.

Hague is reported to have lost to Joseph Molony of Buffalo, N.Y., as much as 20,000 votes. Even his backers believe he'll be out as of June 1, which coincides with the union strike deadline in aluminum.

The five companies that will take part in aluminum talks are Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals, Kaiser Aluminum, Ormet, Inc., and Olin Mathieson.

The union is expected to seek greater job security and a big wage package for its 28,700 members in aluminum. If the size of the steel demands and a recent settlement in the can industry can be taken as any indication, the union will be after a sizeable wage boost.

TRANSFORMER DAMAGED BY FIRE

Fire damaged a transformer in the 1001 West State street residence of Verne J. Smith about seven o'clock Thursday night before firemen arrived.

Firemen reported that the fire, which left several rooms in the house filled with smoke, resulted from a short in the light fixture.

Thursday afternoon about 1:30, firemen were called to 512 Brooklyn where burning trash had spread to a brush pile.

LBJ Warms Up To Open Season

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson warmed up a bit in the bright sunshine Thursday and promised to help open the American League baseball season.

As usual, he will get in free when the Senators open up against the Boston Red Sox at D.C. Stadium Monday.

Observing a tradition of more than a half century—started by his late father-in-law Clark Griffith—league President Joe Cronin visited the White House to present a season pass to the President.

The ceremony was held on the lawn outside Johnson's office. It was a warm, sunny day.

A reporter asked the traditional cliché question, "how's your arm?"

"It's like the sunshine," Johnson said, then bent his right arm a few times but didn't try any practice pitches.

"I'll see you out there (at the ball park)," Johnson told Cronin.

Johnson, a tall right-hander, donned a fielder's glove, flexed his arm a few times, then let fly a line drive pitch last spring in his first start as President.

Cuba On Verge Of Comeback In Sugar Market

HAVANA (AP) — Communist Cuba appears to be on the verge of a dramatic comeback in sugar production that could mark an important breakthrough for Fidel Castro's troubled economy.

A government announcement said Thursday this year's sugar output has already topped the four-million-metric-ton mark, with still another month to go before the harvest ends. Cuba produced an estimated 3.8 million tons of sugar last season, one of the lowest yields in history.

"The battle of the sugar crop is practically won," Castro said in a communique.

Reliable sources, including independent observers, said earlier that Cuba's 1965 sugar crop could go as high as 5.5 million or possibly six million metric tons. This would begin to approach pre-1961 levels before Castro launched his crash industrialization program at the expense of sugar, the mainstay of Cuba's economy.

The increased production is attributed to good government planning with the help of mechanized Soviet equipment. A long dry spell has made an abundant harvest possible. Widespread flooding in 1963 and 1964 wiped out much of the sugar crop.
